Althoush the Morgan firm, if it accepts membership on the financial subcommission at Paris, presumably would be commission at Paris, pres subject to-night in the absence of offi-cial information. There has been ap-parent no disposition, however, to place obstacles in the way of the suggested formation of an international consortium of bankers for floating such a loan as a private investment wholly independent of governmental participation.

Government Not Involved.

George Whitney, one of the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., said last night that the possibility of his firm being represented on the financial commission meeting at Paris next month was news to him. So far as he knew none of the other members of the Morgan firm now in New York had heard of it, Mr. Whitney said.

Mexican Loan Considered.

Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., who has just arrived from the United States, to-day met representatives of France, Great Britain, Holland, Switzerland and Belgium to discuss the financing of a new Mexican loan. They discussed the conditions to be offered to Adolfo de la Huetria, Mexican Minister of Finance, when he goes to New York to discuss flotation of the loan.

It was reported that all the countries involved were desirous of coming to terms to facilitate the floating of the loan and to resume financial relations with Mexico. The negotiations are being kept secret, since the representatives of the loaning countries prefer that the text of the agreement should be given out by Senor de la Huerta himself after it has been signed in New York.

every direction. Again the ex-President's recollection is in error. Just as he has completely forgotten a letter which he did write, he remembers a conversation which never took place.

Those who know the amiable and polite Wilson of 1913 will hardly credit him with having personally insuited a Senator representing a great State, however humble that Senator might be. Those who know me well will scarcely believe I would tamely submit to a gross insult even from so great a man as Mr. Wilson was at that time." insult to him and expressed doubt as to the memory powers of Mr. Wilson.

To support his assertions Senator Reed made public a facsimile letter from Mr. Wilson written in the White House October 23, 1913. It was as follows:

My Dean Senator:

I hesitate to ask you to break in upon what must be one of the busiest weeks you have had by requesting you to come to the White House in order that I may say what it is perfectly impossible for me to say in a letter.

I want to thank you very warmly and sincerely for your statement made through a New York newspaper. I have felt all along that sincere honestly and independence of judgment you were exercising in this whole matter, and you may be sure that there has never been in my mind any criticism except an occasional difference of judgment.

I think things are now shaping themselves admirably and I am quite willing to admit that the processes upon which you have insisted have contributed to that result. I feel that I can count on you from this time to play a leading part in bringing this whole matter to a satisfactory issue and I want you to know what satisfaction it gives me to feel that I can do this. Cordially and faithfully yours. Woodrow Wilson.

P. S.: Pray call upon me at any time you would like to confer about any feature of the matter. W. W.

It was explained in Senator Reed's statement that the matter referred to in the Wilson letter was the Federal Reserve Board bill.

"Permission was asked and granted for the use of this letter in my campaign when I was running on the same ticket with President Wilson and ardently supporting him." added Senator Reed. "Mr. Wilson states that I interposed every possible objection to the completion and adoption of the banking and currency bill. The fact is the principal dispute between the President and myself regarding that bill arose over the question whether the financial and business interests of the country should be given the privilege of coming before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency and express their views r

What Else Happened That Day?

Madame Caillaux was on trial in Paris for killing Gaston Calmette.

In Long Island a woman was mysteriously shot in a doctor's office while on a night visit.

Forty-five stage coaches were held up in Yellowstone Park by two masked bandits who took all the cash of 165 tourists.

Romantic crime, mystery crime, adventurous crime, a public eagerly interested—and they suddenly dropped from the newspapers. The public forgot them. As news, these events became as if they had never happened. Something else had happened.

The day of Madame Caillaux's acquittal, Austria declared war on Serbia. Russia mobilized fourteen army corps on the German border and the price of wheat in this country soared.

All the news that a newspaper prints is affected by what else happened that day. If an earthquake occurs the day you announce your daughter's engagement, her picture may be left out of the newspaper.

The man who made a gelf hole in one the day of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight was out of luck so far as an item on the sporting page was concerned.

When real news breaks, semi-news must go. When real news is scarce, semi-news returns to the front page. A very great man picked out Sunday night to dine at a Bowery mission. Monday is usually a dull day for news, although some big events, notably the sinking of the Titanic, came over the wires Sunday night.

All papers feature big news. When there is no big news, real editing is needed to select the real news from the semi-news.

What you read on dull news days is what fixes your opinions of your country and of your compatriots. It is from the non-sensational news that you see the world and assess, rightly or wrongly, the true value of persons and events.

The relative importance your newspaper gives to an oc-currence affects your thought, your character, and your children's thought and character. For few daily habits are as firmly established as the habit of reading the newspaper.
